

Rob Hambleton

Rob Hambleton's quest to find his lifelong passion led him to discover what he was meant to do – teach others how to find the skills, knowledge and energy they need to realize their own purpose and how to live it every day. When people understand what makes them happy, they become more productive leaders and generate continuous success in the workplace.

Rob's extensive utilization of his finance and management degrees while working for companies like Ford, Kodak and Dell have helped him learn what it takes to succeed in the workplace – both from a business and a personal perspective. Now the owner of his own training and development company, Rob educates others on how to develop their own talents while participating effectively as a team member.

Education Background and Major Accomplishments

- MBA from University of Utah
- Bachelors of Science in Finance and Management from University of Utah
- Accredited Practitioner, Insights Discovery System

Rob's high-energy presentations allow attendees to have fun while learning the important concepts of his program. His engaging speaking style and personal anecdotes help make subject matter applicable to any audience. Conceptual and applied facilitating methods allow Rob to provide a thorough explanation and enhanced audience participation and retention of new ideas and strategies.

Training topics in which Rob specializes include mentoring and team building, Microsoft® Excel®, budgeting, financial statements & analysis, stress and conflict management, interpersonal communication and personal development.

Specific and realistic examples are crucial in Rob's presentations because they invite questions and lead to greater comprehension of main points and ideas. By engaging the participants, Rob is able to increase their 'toolkit', their success, performance and productivity.

Industries of Experience

- Communications
- Strategic Planning
- Manufacturing & Retail
- Marketing & Advertising
- Education
- Agriculture
- Construction
- Non-Profit

---

Rob Hambleton is an experienced professional who has completed a rigorous certification program from Fred Pryor Seminars and Career Track to ensure he offers real-world experience in the courses he facilitates. He maintains his proficiency through industry-specific research, attending advanced seminars and collegiate courses, and communications with other experts in his field.

---